

Landslide station

In landslide territories a system consisting from a central station on a safe location and a network of field sensor locations provided with geotechnical sensors can be provided. The sensors are interconnected via a radio relay system which is automatically switching for alternative routes if some of the sensors are lost.

Multi-Hazard Stations

